

November 4, 2011

Dear Clients, employees and shareholders of A-Forex,

I'm very pleased to announce that A-Forex and Boston Technologies have recently signed a business agreement. Per this agreement Boston Technologies will be providing technology solutions to A-Forex, and its clients/subsidiaries.

I would like to congratulate all clients of A-Forex, this partnership is quite a significant event both for A-Forex, and for Boston Technologies. Boston Technologies is the inventor of the Liquidity Bridge, and offers the most advanced technologies within the Foreign Exchange trading industry. Now the clients of A-Forex will be privy to all the advantages that trading through the leading technology company within the industry provides.

Boston Technologies has existing partnerships with many of the largest Liquidity Providers, and brokers across the world, and we are glad to induct A-Forex into this network.

For clients of A-Forex this means that now you will get prices from the leading international banks, on a wider range of instruments, with faster transaction execution, detailed reporting, along with 'round the clock support and too many other advantages to list.

If you are still trading on a demo account or are considering trading through other brokerages, then stop. Now is the time to sign with A-Forex, and reap the benefits of trading through the leading FX Technology provider in the world.

Good luck in you trading and we wish you all the best.

Sincerely,

George Popescu
CEO of Boston Technologies